Making a Difference

Chuck Dietzen, MD

Dr. Chuck has been able to make wonderful changes in the lives of many young patients, aging from only a few months old to late teens. In this presentation he will share special lessons through heart-wrenching moments that he has had as a pediatric rehabilitation doctor and world traveling physician. He is a distinguished IU School of Medicine Alum, and has treated patients in under-served populations in 30 different countries through an organization that he founded called Timmy Global Health. Anyone can make a wonderful difference in the lives of others and hopefully these insightful moments will help you along your own path to making a difference. Level: All Levels

Assessing & Treating Suspected
Childhood Apraxia of Speech, Part 1

Cari Ebert, MS, CCC-SLP

When childhood apraxia of speech (CAS) is suspected, a different path of intervention must be followed based on the principles of motor learning, because these children will not benefit from traditional speech therapy approaches. There are plenty of assessment tools, therapy materials, apps and continuing education courses available for providers treating older children with CAS, but there is limited clinically relevant information regarding the assessment and treatment of toddlers and preschoolers with suspected CAS. This seminar will provide therapy goals and activities along with valuable strategies for embedding speech practice into routines that naturally occur in a young child's day. Level: Intermediate

Pharmaceuticals and Nutraceuticals for Hearing Loss and Tinnitus, Part 1

Robert DiSogra, AuD

The number of pharmaceuticals available to manage hearing loss and tinnitus continues to grow. Also, there are over 80 over-the-counter products claiming relief or a cure for tinnitus however none of these products are FDA approved. Of concern is that there are some products that contain ingredients that could be harmful to special patient populations. This program reviews the current pharmaceutical research for hearing loss and tinnitus as well as reviewing the efficacy and safety OTC tinnitus relief products. Patient management strategies are also reviewed. Level: Intermediate

Integrating SLP Interventions into Classrooms Using a Workload Approach, Part 1

Christina Bradburn, MS, CCC-SLP

This seminar is designed to provide time-saving strategies using a workload approach that will turn you into an intervention superstar without compromising your SLP-specific skill set. You will gain valuable strategies to help you integrate classroom curriculum into your goals, learn to co-teach across grade levels, and how to integrate them into all parts of the school day. Scheduling your days for maximum impact will be a focus of the day along with models of hundreds of grade-level specific ideas to take back and use tomorrow.

Jessie Ritter, MA, CCC-SLP, LSLs Cert. AVEd

Courtney Pakenham, MA, CCC-SLP

This presentation will expand the attendees' resources for targeting speech and language goals in therapy using board games and applications. Speech language pathologists may use board games as a reward or motivator in therapy without realizing the potential for targeting specific articulation and/or language goals within the game. Additionally, the same potential for speech and language growth is available when using applications. By using games and applications, the student gets the opportunity to practice their skills in a more natural, meaningful, and fun context. Video demonstrations and examples of therapists utilizing games and applications will be provided.

The SLP and AT: It's More Than AAC!

Sarah Reaves, MA, CCC-SLP

The school-based SLP may only focus on assistive technology for student communication needs and focus on AAC. Why aren't we, as the communication "expert," also looking at access across reading, writing, math, vocational, and daily living skills? This session will increase the school-based SLP's awareness to other assistive technology accommodations/tools to meet academic learning needs, not just communication needs.

Drug Side Effects on Audiological and Vestibular Testing

Robert DiSogra, AuD

There are over 2000 drugs with a combined total of over 400 side effects that could result in obtaining inaccurate case history information or the selection of tests whose results could lead to misdiagnosing the patients hearing, cognitive or vestibular problem. This program reviews auditory/vestibular and cognitive side effects of many of the drugs patients take regularly and offers suggestions to obtain a more accurate case history. A review of preferred websites to obtain drug side effect information is included. Several case studies are presented to enhance the learning experience. Level: Intermediate

Best Practice & Eligibility/Dismissal Decisions: Indiana's Speech-Language Guidance Document

Rachel Ross-Kroemer, MA, CCC-SLP

As there was on-going and continuous concern in Indiana about school caseload sizes, an ISHA task force was developed to explore the issues surrounding caseload. This session focuses on the work of ISHA's school-based task force in the development of Indiana's speech-language guidance document. What impacts caseload size is a complex issue, but it was found that districts (nationally and locally) who have used similar guidance have more reasonable caseloads than districts who don't have guidance considerations. This session will emphasize that caseload is just one part of a SLP's responsibilities in schools. The range of roles that the SLP has in schools needs to be considered for the SLP to work most collaboratively with other general education and special education professionals, as well as to work toward supporting positive outcomes for all students. Including Samuel

Before his son Samuel was diagnosed with cerebral palsy, photojournalist Dan Habib rarely thought about the inclusion of people with disabilities. Now he thinks about inclusion every day. Shot and produced over four years, Habib's award-winning documentary film, Including Samuel, chronicles the Habib family's efforts to include Samuel in every facet of their lives. The film honestly portrays his family's hopes and struggles, as well as the experiences of four other individuals with disabilities and their families. Including Samuel is a highly personal, passionately photographed film that captures the cultural and systemic barriers to inclusion. Including Samuel was edited by Rikk Desgres of Pinehurst Pictures and Sound. Engineering an Immersive AAC Environment

Beth Browning, MS, CCC-SLP

Did you take a foreign language in high school or college? Are you fluent in that language today? If so, it is likely due to the fact that at some point, you were immersed in the language. What does immersion mean and how does it apply to individuals who are learning to communicate with AAC? In this session, we will discuss how to engineer an immersive AAC environment to maximize your client's potential for "fluency" with their AAC system. Examples will be provided for school, clinic, and home environments. We will also discuss descriptive vs. referential teaching as it pertains to immersing individuals in their AAC vocabulary.

The Power of Play in the Development of Young Children, Part 1

Cari Ebert, MS, CCC-SLP

It is critical for pediatric therapists to understand the connection between brain development and play. This seminar provides an evidenced-based approach to working with young children by promoting cognitive, communication, social-emotional and sensorimotor development through child-directed, adult-guided play experiences. Participants will gain clinically relevant information related to the developmental benefits of play-based therapy, the limitations of screen-based play, effectively preparing young learners for school, and the importance of relationship-based learning.

Toss the Workbooks: Practical Approaches for Person-Centered Dementia Care

Becky Khayum, MS, CCC-SLP

Emily Rogalski, PhD

Darby Morhardt, MSW, PhD

As the US population ages, the number of people diagnosed with dementia diagnosis will exponentially increase. As a result, the speech-language pathologist's (SLP) dementia caseload will increase, across all treatment settings. SLP's often report difficulty providing person-centered interventions for this population. This presentation will provide a team approach for diagnosing and treating dementia syndromes and will outline how to use the established evidence-based cognitive-communication approaches for dementia care, with a focus upon person-centered, functional interventions. We will also describe psychosocial considerations for the individual and family members. Level: Beginner

ESSA Language Therapy Strategies for Push-In and Pull-Out

Margo Kinzer Courter, MBA, MA, CCC-SLP, BCS-CL

In December 2015, President Barack Obama signed the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA), Public Law 114-95, into law. This new major federal K-12 law replaces the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB). Speech-language pathologists are called upon to assist students in literacy including dyslexia as well as and early intervening services. This presentation will provide evidence based strategies to address the language and executive function areas that impact literacy that can be utilized for early intervening services as well as direct therapy. A Life Participation Approach for Treatment for Individuals with Primary Progressive Aphasia

Becky Khayum, MS, CCC-SLP

Emily Rogalski, PhD

Darby Morhardt, MSW, PhD

Primary Progressive Aphasia (PPA) is a clinical dementia syndrome with no cure and unique management needs. SLP's may be unsure of how to approach treatment for those with PPA versus those with stroke-induced aphasia. The heterogeneity of symptoms and the progressive nature of the disease require a holistic, person-centered approach, using a combination of impairment-directed and compensatory interventions to increase participation in meaningful life activities. The recommended strategies need to be adjusted over time to meet a patient's changing communication needs as the disease progresses. This session will provide an overview of PPA and a summary of nonpharmacological interventions, including psychosocial approaches and the use of a life participation approach to support person-centered, evidence-based speech-language assessment and treatment.

Tiers Without Tears! Implementing Best Practices in Literacy Instruction and How SLPs Can Help, Part 1

Steve Griffin, MS, CCC-SLP

A few things done well in schools go a long way in helping kids read. Unfortunately, great ideas in literacy and great ideas in response to intervention programs quickly become bad ideas because of poor implementation plans, sowing confusion and limiting meaningful results. This extended session will take a close look at evidenced based reading practices in schools. We'll cover the entire gamut of literacy, from phonemic awareness, reading decoding, vocab, comprehension, and universal screenings to RTI systems, evaluations and tricky diagnoses like dyslexia and executive functioning issues. The best part is Steve will involve the SLP the entire way and show them how to use their expertise on multiple levels in multiple ways to contribute to the overall academic success of students and better align themselves to school, district and state initiatives. From Acute Care to School: How Do We Navigate the Journey with the ABI/TBI Student to Help Them Have the Best Return to School?, Part 1

Karen Thomas, MS, CCC-SLP, CBIST

Cindy Shepherd, MA, CCC-SLP, CBIST

It is essential that the hospital SLP, clinic based SLP, and the school SLP gain a basic understanding of the role of speech therapy services during the school-aged student's acute hospital stay, acute rehabilitation, during transition to outpatient clinic, and finally return to school. Speech, language, and cognitive linguistic deficits in the student with ABI/TBI will be presented. In addition the behavioral and medical challenges faced by students with ABI/TBI will be discussed. This course helps the entire team from Acute Care to School understand the challenges the student faces. Level: Beginner/Intermediate

New Research Directions and Intervention Strategies with Children Who Stutter

Bridget Walsh, PhD, CCC-SLP

Barbara Brown, MS, CCC-SLP

Katelyn Lippitt Gerwin, MS, SLP-CF, PhD Student

Attendees will receive with an overview of two methodologies used to study the functional neurological and psychophysiological bases of stuttering in preschool and school-aged children. This research is critical to our research goals of discovering biomarkers of stuttering persistence. We will also offer comprehensive measures that SLPs can use to assess the impact of stuttering on school-aged children; the importance of writing measurable, functional goals which address more than speech fluency; and describe effective intervention strategies with a focus on working collaboratively with the child, parents, and teachers, to successfully manage stuttering. Invisibility: The Cause and the Cure

Raymond Furner, PhD

Hearing loss affects more than 40 million people in the United States. It fosters the syndrome of invisibility, leads to lost productivity, diminished social and cultural interaction and reduces levels of function that are needed for personal and professional satisfaction. There are three types of hearing: good, bad and ugly. For communications hearing is necessary and understanding is required. Detection, diagnosis and treatment of hearing loss and communication disorders mitigate the syndrome of invisibility by providing a basis of communication that will allow participation in society at a level suitable to a particular individual. Advocating for the Advocate: How to Work Together to Support Children & Families While Developing a Great IEP

Mary Bowman, MS, PT

Having a family member state that they are "bringing an advocate" to their case conference committee meeting shouldn't be a situation that causes anxiety for a school service provider or teacher. We all have the same goal of working to write a plan that meets the educational needs of a child. In this presentation, we will discuss the multiple reasons a family may request an advocate. We will also discuss the roles of an advocate, the complexities inherent in Article 7, and other ways that a nonprofit like the Joseph Maley Foundation can support children and schools. Voice and Communication Intervention for Gender Diverse Individuals

Julia Rademacher, MM, MA, CCC-SLP

In this session we will discuss the gender spectrum and the developing healthcare continuum as relates to services for the transgender community. Ideas to consider in planning for assessment and treatment across all communication domains will be presented. Goal development with consideration of clients' physiological challenges and personal needs will be discussed. Participants will learn about treatment approaches that have been successfully used with this population and will have opportunities to develop their clinical skills with these approaches. Communication: Encouraging Liberty and Justice for All

Sharon Mankey, MAT, CCC-SLP

Mariesa Rang, MA, CCC-SLP

There is a lack of knowledge among first responders as to how people who are nonverbal communicate. It is imperative that they are trained concerning augmentative/alternative communication so that those with disabilities are given freedom to express themselves to the first responders to obtain the assistance they need in an emergency situation. Without such exchange of information, the victims will never obtain the justice they seek and deserve. Level: Intermediate

Sorting Out Auditory and Language Processing Disorders

Gail Richard, PhD, CCC-SLP

Processing is the ability to discriminate and attach meaning to stimuli received, to then formulate a response. Processing auditory information occurs on a continuum of skills involving acoustic, phonetic, and linguistic interpretation. Processing disorders can be identified through an identifiable pattern of symptomatic behavioral characteristics, that can then be delineated into deficits areas for intervention. Students often struggle to efficiently and effectively process auditory information presented in the educational environment. This presentation will provide an overview of both auditory and language processing disorders to facilitate clinical intervention to address the problems. Level: Intermediate

Who Me? Volunteers Shape the Profession

Gail Richard, PhD, CCC-SLP

The disciplines of audiology and speech-language pathology are stimulating and encompassing! ASHA relies on the expertise, time, and talent of volunteers. Despite the many challenges of everyday life, service opportunities can be incredibly enriching and rewarding. This session will inspire you to re-evaluate your professional and personal goals, refocus on what is important, and provide reasons and suggestions to get involved. Volunteers make a difference!
